

VŨ QUANG MINH (チョーライ病院 消化器外科医／2016年8月22日～9月2日)

This is the second time that I have visited Japan, the first for APASL conference in February, Tokyo and my first impression about Japan is friendly and kindness of Japanese people. This time for clinical training in University of Tsukuba Hospital makes me know more about Japan. The first day, we were welcomed by a storm with strong wind and heavy rain, fortunately, we reached dormitory safely

Next day in the morning, we met Ms. Fukaya for registering and introducing trainees to three departments: Gastroenterological dept., ENT dept. and Neuro surgery dept.

I trained in Gastroenterological department. During the time of training, I had some valuable experiences in liver resection from surgeons of the department. Besides studying, we were invited to some parties with joyfulness, friendliness and kindness, delicious Japanese traditional foods, of course.

I had a nice visiting to Tsukuba and I would like to thank to everyone who helped me during the training time.
