

2018 6th Annual Training Course in Biomedical Innovation and Entrepreneurship

General Information

Date: Monday, July 16th – Friday, July 27th, 2018 (arrival on July 15, 2018 in Berlin)

Venue: Charité University Hospital and Humboldt Graduate School, Berlin Germany

Cost: €2700 (per person, nonrefundable deposit of €1000 paid by May 1, 2018) (Cost of course includes lectures and Tutorials, 2 weeks of accommodations, morning/afternoon break and lunch each day, weekend day excursion in Berlin and 2-week local transportation ticket. It does not include dinner)

Accommodations: Hotel near Berlin Mitte (Breakfast at hotel)

Participants: Up to 30 PhD students from SPARK associated site universities (Exceptions can be made, please ask.)

Course Information

Overall Course Design and Coordinator: Professor Michael Wallach, University of Technology Sydney (UTS), Australia. Course topics listed on last page.

Course Leaders: Professor Michael Wallach, Professor Daria Mochly-Rosen and Professor Kevin Grimes – Co-Directors of SPARK Stanford, Professor Craig Garner, Co-Founder SPARK Berlin

Course Organizer: Tanja Rosenmund, PhD, SPARK Berlin Program Coordinator and Abigail Garner, MS, SPARK Berlin Health Consultant

Goal of Course is to train students to develop skills in design thinking, brainstorming, product development, and commercialization for unmet medical needs and to become more creative, innovative and savvy in translational research in the Biomedical Sciences. This taught is taught through lectures, group work and presentations.

EACH SPARK PROGRAM CAN SEND UP TO 3 PARTICIPANTS.

The name of the students from your site and deposit of €1000 (a non-refundable deposit) is needed by May 1, 2016, in order to register for the course. Please send information, student name and email, to spark@bihealth.de. After this point the following information will be collected from each student:

1. Application Form
2. Brief Curriculum Vitae
3. Photo of student

Payment

In addition to the non-refundable deposit of €1000, a final payment of €1700 must be made by June 15, 2018 to secure a place in the course. Further details about the mechanism for sending/receiving this payment will be provided soon.

Places are limited so please reply soon!